The Fire Record

B.C. Lumber Mill Burned. Dwellings Destroyed In Albany

(Bulletin Special)
Vancouver, Oct. 8.—Fire completely wiped out Heaps' saw mill at Cedar Cove Saturday. This loss is estimated at $200,000 and the insurance is said to cover about half the loss. The mill originated in a dry kiln, but the exact cause is not known. One of the men working on the mill was killed by falling from a roof and another named Wand fell from a ladder and received injuries that incapacitated him for service for the time. A report that three Hindus and two Japanese were buried in the collapse of a building is not confirmed. It took three hours to get the fire under control. Nothing was saved but a part of the mill and one large warehouse. Some telephone poles on the railway were burned down and the lines put out of service for a time.

(Bulletin Special)
Albany, New York, Oct. 8.—Twenty-four dwellings destroyed in a fire which broke out in the morning at a property loss of $125,000 on a quarter of which is covered by insurance. The fire started in a rooming house and spread to the adjacent buildings. The fire was caused by a gas stove which had been left burning. The fire department, Albany and Troy fire departments, stayed off the flames.

(Bulletin Special)
Buffalo, Oct. 8.—Charles F. Dolan's furniture store at the corner of Mohawk and Washington streets, was destroyed Saturday by fire, causing an estimated loss of $250,000. The building, a four-story brick, owned by the Olympic theatre company of New York, is a total loss. An immense crowd drawn from Main, Genesee and other business thoroughfares, packed Washington and Mohawk streets in the excitement and interfered greatly with the work of the firemen and the police reserves were called out and many people in the crowd were roughly handled before the police gained control of the situation. The loss is well covered by insurance. The other tenants of the building were the Century telephone company, Tobin Walter company, millinery, John C. Lutz and Bros., wall paper, dealers, and Henry Warren, chandeliers. The telephone company suffered the heaviest damage, their share of the loss being $150,000.

(Bulletin Special)
Kenora, Oct. 7.—Yesterday the journeymen tailors and tailors' assistants went out on strike, the grievance being that they do not get the same scale of prices as the tailors in the city, while the bosses get just as good prices for the material. There is a difference of about two dollars per week for the tailors which they feel justified in trying to obtain, hence the strike. It is thought the situation will be relieved within the next forty-eight hours.

New Opera House

Will Open On Thursday Of This Week With Popular Company

Thursday, October 11th will see the return of two favorites in Mr. Claude Amsten, the comedian and Miss Hazel Davenport, soprano, both too well known to local patrons of the theatre through their many appearances here with the famous Roscian Opera Co., to need any introduction, suffice to say that they will appear in their own production backed by their own company with a big chorus. The first performance will be that of "The Governor's Wife" a musical comedy opera, written and staged by Mr. Amsten himself, which in itself should be a guarantee that the production will be up-to-date. "The Governor's Wife" will be played for one night, and for the second night the company will sing Gilbert and Sullivan's opera "The Mascot." "The Mascot" has perhaps been played more times than any piece of operatic work before the music-loving world today. The last great run the piece had was for over 200 nights in New York by the Herald Square Company.

Rail At Morinville

Trackmen Putting In Y To-Day. Will Commence White Whale Branch This Week

The tracklayers on the C.N.R. reached Morinville on Saturday and are putting in the "Y" and sidings today. This work will be completed by Wednesday or Thursday and the tracklaying on the White Whale Lake branch commenced.

Garipey & Lesard's elevator, on which construction was commenced recently as well along and will be ready to handle grain for this fall's trade. John Gillespie, of North Dakota, who recently purchased the flour mill, elevator and coal mine, of the Morinville Milling Co. is hiring twenty-five teams to haul coal from the mine to the track, a distance of two and one-half miles. The C.N.R. is to put in a spur track to the mine but pending the construction the coal will be hauled to Morinville with teams. The location of the C.N.R. station in Morinville has not been announced, and as the telegraph line has not yet reached the terminus the railroad business is being done by telephone. Morinville people feel quite elated over their having gained transportation facilities and an brisk and active fall and winter are looked forward to.

Brakeman Killed

In the C.N.R. Yards at Vermillion—Due to Carelessness

(Bulletin Special)
Vermillion, Oct. 8.—The inquest on the brakeman J. Borden, who was killed in the C.N.R. yards, was held before Coroner Ryan at 9 a.m. Saturday. The jury consisted of Messrs. W. J. Macnab, W. Gibson, M. Stephens, C. E. Slater, and R. Mitchell. The train crew were called as witnesses, and the jury inspected the couplings of the two cars between which the unfortunate man was crushed. The verdict brought in was that "The body, which was frightfully crushed, lies in Mr. McClinton's undertaking parlors awaiting news from relatives."

Killed in a Row

Man Killed in a Winnipeg Hotel on Saturday Evening

(Bulletin Special)
Winnipeg, Oct. 8.—Thomas Humphries was killed Saturday night in a drunken row in the Stock Exchange hotel. While in a tussle with two bartenders he was kicked in the abdomen and died an hour later. The two bartenders, Thomas Powers and Elmer Savage are being held pending the inquest.

Downs Triumphs

Gets All For Two Falls in Whirlwind Event on Saturday Night—Greek Wants Match

It was no parlor social when Downs and Alin met on Saturday night. Although the entire three rounds lasted only nine minutes of actual wrestling time, the audience saw a cyclonic, rip-roaring, chain-lightning event such as has never been seen in the city before, with Alin the loser from over confidence and Downs the winner on pure science.

Jack McLeer, of Lacombe, who appears to be stage manager for Alin was on hand and was so evidently confident that he had long green rolls of nine money to squander on his judgment and the local boys had no hesitation about taking him up. Alin is a wrestler without doubt and is a match for Downs any evening of the year but he undoubtedly underestimated his man after the first fall and cost himself the match.

A fairly large audience turned out to see the match, and when the Blatchford-Jensen affair was closed they were impatient for the main event.

The first fall was a surprise party to the entire house. When the referee introduced the wrestlers and commanded them to shake hands they sprang at each other and during the next 60 seconds pretty nearly every hold known to the wrestling science was tried by the athletes. In an unguarded moment Alin got a crotch hold and pinned his man long enough for the referee to count three. It took only one minute. Alin's followers felt enthusiastic and believed they had the match pretty well in hand.

The next round was as fast and furious as the first, but lasted a little longer. Alin undoubtedly thought he had an easy thing and did not take the care that the qualifications of his opponent demanded. Downs got a crotch hold and half-Nelson and bore his man to the mat. He did not hold him any longer than the law required and some of the fans were inclined to dispute the decision of Referee Scott, but even Alin admitted its fairness.

The third fall was the exciting scene of the event. It was even up and the pace was fierce. Twice in the five minutes Alin got his man where it looked dangerous and the crowd was on tip-toe waiting for judgment, but Downs cleverly wriggled out of the tight holds and at the end of five minutes got Alin into a corner where he had him dead in a burian of applause. The Blatchford-Jensen match was slow and not particularly interesting. Jensen has it over Blatchford and it was only a matter of time until he could get the local boy. Blatchford fought him off for 31 minutes before

Grain Shipment

Of these 1,257 were No. 1 hard; as against 351 in Sept., 1915, showing a very satisfactory state of affairs. In September, 1916, 2,083 cars of northern were received as against 2,334 in Sept., 1915. This year there were 635 and 3 cars of 2 and 3 northern respectively as against 600 and 66 last year.

Mr. Mann is a director of many important Canadian companies.

the Swede got the first fall, on a crotch hold, and as Blatchford left the mat it was evident that he had called on his reserves for pretty nearly all he had. The second fall went to Jensen in nine minutes, the Swede getting an arm and body hold that the local boy could not get away from and although he fought against it for a long two minutes there was no doubt about the finish.

The third was a repetition of the other two, only more brief. With his steam pretty much all in, Blatchford sparred for time, but it lasted only six minutes when the Swede got a crotch hold and tipped Blatchford onto the back of his neck when he gradually pressed him to the mat, getting his three falls in 14 minutes short of the hour.

Soldiers of Fortune

Nelson and Bruce Open a Week's Engagement Tonight

The coming engagement of Messrs. Harold Nelson and Clifford Lane Bruce with their supporting company in the Thistle rink will be welcome news to the theatregoers of Edmonton.

The company play a week's engagement here, commencing tonight. The play for the opening night, "A Soldier of Fortune," is a romantic drama in which the various passions that go to make the complex human nature are brought out.

The play is a very strong one, with affecting scenes and stirring climaxes and sufficient comedy to keep the audience from wearying of the heavier scenes.

Sir Rupert, the wanderer around whose adventures the play is woven, is excellently taken by Mr. Nelson. The gay, careless, fearless reliance and upholder of the poor and oppressed in a lifelike chronicle in Mr. Nelson's hands.

The Nelson and Bruce Co. this year are by far the most talented company that these artists have ever brought to Edmonton. The company contains such well known people as Mr. George A. Dayton, Mr. Wm. Yule, the well known comedian, Mr. Bryce Diamond, Miss Pearl Rescor, Miss Lucy Thayer, Miss Dorothy Thomas and others.

Special arrangements are being made by the management to have the rink comfortably heated and patrons are assured that their comfort will be well looked after.

Estimates ready—Secretary-Treasurer G. J. Kinnaird announced this morning that he was working on the civic estimates and hoped to have them ready to submit to the council at its regular meeting tomorrow evening. If so the council will be asked to adopt the estimates and strike a rate for the ensuing year.

The secretary-treasurer did not care to forewarn the probable expenditure that the council would be asked to sanction.

The committee that has charge of the organization of the proposed house-to-house visitation in connection with the church census will meet Tuesday evening in the Baptist church and all members are requested to be present. Everyone should be interested in this as it means a census of the entire population.

In view of the fact the House of Commons meets in a few weeks it is desired by those who have the formation of the new city regiment in hand that as many as possible avail themselves of enrolling. It is essential to have the names of those who are enrolled so that they can be sent to the Minister of Militia to show him there is sufficient material to form a regiment. Forms are to be found in the banks and telegraph offices, one for enrolling to petition the minister to form a regiment and the other for enrolment in the regiment. Those who desire to enroll are requested to sign both petitions.

Semi-ready dress clothes are the highest expression of art in tailoring

THE best tailor in town makes only 3 or 4 dress suits in a year. They are novelties with him, and their style and making are pretty much an experiment. That is why so many gentlemen look like waiters when they put on dress clothes.

The design of the Semi-ready dress suit is the work of a sartorial artist of the highest rank. The suits are tailored by men who do nothing else—they are specialists in the tailoring of dress clothes.

Semi-ready dress clothes are made of light-weight unfinished worsteds. The coat is delicately designed, as the parts are smaller than in any other style. The balance and lines are such as to show the figure at its best. The shoulders are broad yet natural form.

The Semi-ready dress suit is made with a longer lapel, rolling to within two and a half inches of the waist, with considerable convex on crease, and a softened point at bottom of lapel instead of the usual harsh point.

On account of the carefully designed lines, the coat adheres closely to the figure, the skirt is more shapely and sets smoothly over the hips.

The skirts are longer, tapering towards the bottom with slightly rounded corners. The illustration shows these lines.

If you wear a dress suit at all, it should be correct in style and tailoring.

We would like to show you how simple the Semi-ready dress suit and tuxedo are. Will you call in?

U.S. INTERVENTION IN CUBA

As expected the Cuban muddle has resulted in intervention by the United States, intervention which however contrary to the commonly understood theory of the United States ideals in government will doubtless be welcomed by the more responsible Cubans themselves, and also by the foreigners residing or having interests there. The intervention was not made at a time or in a manner to indicate other than a genuine desire on the part of the United States Government to restore order and secure a stable administration in the island.

To say Cuban affairs were at a deadlock would be to mis-state and understate the case. Not only was the government blockaded in any endeavor to govern, but its very existence was in jeopardy, and the first detachment of American troops were landed at the request of President Palma himself, when the insurrectionist forces, daily increasing in strength, were only twelve miles from the capital. It cannot be charged therefore, that the United States displayed any anxiety to again occupy the island; it did so only when the island government admitted that it could no longer govern nor even restore the elementary conditions which make governing possible. So far as the occupation was concerned, it appears to have been simply a fulfillment of the political duty implied in the situation, and it is not to be held responsible for the moral duty which devolves upon the United States to preserve the governmental institutions which it established in Cuba.

The action was encouraged, and was possibly first suggested by the enormous interests which United States people have in Cuba and by the large number of them resident there. Every civilized country acknowledges a measure of responsibility in preventing injustice done to its subjects in foreign countries, and if this has been done in some cases, conditions were rapidly developing in Cuba, which threatened the complete disruption of commercial and industrial enterprise, as well as the actual destruction of property by fire and pillage. To disregard this trend of affairs would have been a neglect of duty scarcely to be expected from a powerful and enlightened nation. This condition of things must have soon resulted in interference by some foreign power, and by taking the initiative the United States has prevented the unpleasant situation which must have resulted from intervention by any other power.

The protection of the United States will of course, not be confined to the interests of its own citizens. It is significant that the first police duty of the United States marines reported by the press was the protection of property belonging not to an American, but a British subject. The incident indicates not only that all foreign interests will be protected, but that the time for intervention by the United States was now or never. Had British interests not been protected by the United States, they would assuredly have been promptly attended to by Great Britain. This consideration doubtless played a part in timing the action and it may have been because of confidence in the intention of the United States to intervene if occasion demanded that not even a rumor of British intervention was aroused.

As to the result of the intervention, who can say? One result will be the restoration of order and a serious attempt to continue the responsible form of government. But this the Cubans have in three years' fair trial proven themselves incapable to carry on at present. Despite the apparent intention of the United States to interfere only so long as interference is necessary, the may be found a much longer period than at present contemplated. Great Britain has found on more than one occasion that "temporary occupation" of a weak country, inhabited by a people unaccustomed to responsible government plunging them in a state worse than their first and the "temporary occupation" has been protracted until it equaled the most disastrous and permanent. Cuba may turn out to be the "Egypt" of the United States.

VALUE OF SPECIAL TRAINING IN ANY LINE

This is an age of specialties. It should be the parents' aim to start every boy and girl in life with a training enabling him or her to do one thing as nearly perfect as possible. The young person who is not especially trained for some business, trade or profession will be seriously handicapped through all his life.

Until recent years the principal avenue open to young women were teaching, sewing, and keeping the small shop. These were genteel occupations. If the young women had not the social standing to warrant her entering one of these, she went into a neighbor's family to assist the house mother with her work. Doing this the doors of society were generally closed against her. These were days in England. In early days on this continent where there were many girls in the family it was thought no disgrace for one or more to go into other families less favored with femininity and take part in the housekeeping. In our day society is in a much worse state, for, usually women who are considered incapable of doing any other kind of work undertake housework as a means of livelihood. That seems to be putting it broadly and yet when you go through our kitchens and consider the mental capacity of those who are doing our housework, does it seem to you to be too strong?

With a steadily increasing population it is often absolutely necessary that girls as well as boys earn their living. For that reason young women are just as anxious as men to become experts in some particular line of work. It is a sign of progression in civilization that today there is not an avenue of work which is closed to woman if she has the physical strength to enter it. They show mental diversities and capacities as widely as men. There are women born to be doctors, others for the business world, but far the greater majority are better equipped for home making and home keeping than any other. That being true, why should these women not be given as broad and thorough training in that line of work as the woman who elects to be a physician? In fact, housework is preeminently woman's work and every girl should have some special training in it to be useful in future days, no matter what other profession she determines to follow.

The results of having no previous knowledge of household matters are too often disinterest and disinclination to take them up. The domestic service problem which is just now facing us so seriously is another result of lack of training. Perhaps the most serious result of all is the universal abandonment of the home. Perhaps you have not felt that so much in this new country as they do in towns and cities in the East where every year boarding houses and hotels are claiming a larger number of families as their permanent occupants. Do you consider what it means to a country to give up its homes? Have you thought what a nation of men and women will be who have had no home training and no home life? We hear everywhere in older parts of the country that the home must be broken up, that the family can keep house no longer because there is no one to do the work. The mistress of the home is too deeply engrossed in outside work. Her social duties and other matters claim too much of her time and, then, housekeeping is such a bugbear. The young woman has her time all occupied with various studies and numerous amusements, besides, following her mother, she considers housework a nuisance. There is no one left to keep the house machinery running, but the maid in the kitchen, who very often is a foreigner ignorant of the ways of the country and not any more fond than her mistress of housework. Her efforts are usually not very successful, but what can you expect? She scarcely knew the difference between an apple and a potato when she came to the country. As to setting a table or serving a meal, neither has ever been presented to her in any sort of way.

SEMI-READY WARDROBE—

Cause of the Cuban Insurrection

(By Talcott Williams in "The Outlook.")

The insurrection in Cuba is both overestimated and undervalued by the Americans. A resort to arms by a defeated political party is mere politics to the Spanish temperament. The custom existed in Spain through three-fourths of the nineteenth century, when it had disappeared in every other European country. It means far less there and in Spanish America than insurrection does in more advanced races. It has taken place within a year both in Argentina and Uruguay without seriously interfering with the commercial prosperity of either. The risk is that, allowing for this, the American will not appreciate how deep and far-reaching are the causes which have brought about the present Cuban outbreak in an island whose conditions render this desultory warfare easy, its suppression difficult, and feed it with resources which come from social, economic and political differences based on the structure and development of society.

The stability of Spanish-American rule is almost in exact proportion to the share of white population present. If, like the belt of equatorial republics between Mexico and Brazil, only ten or fifteen per cent of the population is white, revolution will be the rule. If the proportion is reversed, as in Argentina, stability will come early. If, as in Mexico, a quarter of the population is white, a quarter mixed, and only half indigenous, a half-century of turbulent revolution, in which governments succeed each other almost annually, will at last bring stability. In only two lands, Chile and Salvador, have a few white families holding the great mass of property been able to preserve tolerably stable rule over a population in large proportion either black or red. Cuba is now two-thirds white, though in 1846 the races were evenly divided. The prospect of its escaping disorder is therefore strong, but its black tract on some 505,443 out of a total of 1,572,797 in 1899, is in much larger share the descendant of negroes brought from Africa during the nineteenth century than in any but small portions of our own South—and those small portions, where slave cargoes were landed after the abolition of the slave trade in Florida, in Alabama, and in Louisiana, are notorious for their disorders and for race issues.

If disorder could be prevented by material prosperity, Cuba would be without insurrection. It is now six years since seven years of insurrection against Spain had reduced the population of Cuba by nearly a quarter, destroyed the works of almost every sugar plantation, and diminished its foreign commerce by one-third. In four years, since the American army left the Cuban government in control, its railway system has increased almost one-fourth, from 1,200 miles to 1,583 miles. In 1899 there were 100 miles; two-thirds the present mileage. Its sugar product, 1,092,000 tons in 1905, exceeded that of 1894, the largest year in Cuban history. This only means that old plantations, about 2,000,000 acres, are again producing. When land newly brought under cultivation in the past five years yields, the crop will be 1,500,000 tons. Its tobacco product has risen to $26,000,000. Where 375,000 bales of 110 pounds were produced before the war, 375,000 bales were grown last year. Of this nearly half goes to the United States—as does practically all its sugar crop—under the reciprocity treaty. Cuban imports, which in 1934 were $74,000,000, have risen to $84,000,000. This increase of $10,000,000 represents the decrease of Spanish tribute and an increase of general consumption. Its exports have advanced from $100,000,000 to $110,000,000, though changes of price reversed the increase in quantity far greater. To sugar and tobacco are being added a large export of bananas and vegetables. Wages for labor have nearly doubled. Land has risen over the entire island. An immigration of some 16,000 a year adds one per cent to its population yearly a proportion as large as that of the largest yearly immigration to the United States. Its railways, which six years ago were little less than tracks, and roadbeds, have been dividing from five to twelve per cent the latter a dividend just made on the United Railways of Havana. This railway in August completed a consolidation in which the fortunate promoters raised $200,000, and the shares were left at 125 common and 160 preferred. Plantations have been rising all over the island. Two sugar profits of the United States Company take in, one 6,000 and the other 16,000 acres, and the smaller is provided with works at the cost of $1,000,000, equal to the handling of 150 tons of cane daily. The schools, 3,633 in number, had an attendance two years ago of 161,000—nearly a tenth of the total population. This is more than three-fourths of the school population, on an island where elementary education was the privilege of the few before American occupation. The Government, with its yearly revenue of $17,000,000 and its expenditure of about $16,000,000, has had in several years a surplus larger than during the entire period of American occupation. It has sold its bonds on a level with those of our own States.

These changes, however, have, like all such advances in material prosperity, been of small advantage to those who are neither ready nor willing to profit by them. The increase of wages has been accompanied by an even larger increase in wants. Those who have shared in leading the revolution find themselves without the rewards that they anticipated. In Cuba, as in all countries which have passed through rebellion, reconstruction, succeeded by the gradual but inevitable ascendancy of property, intelligence and the directing forces of the community, in inexorable law governs the changes which takes place. The Cuban revolution of 1895-98 was the result of the termination of reciprocity with this country, which whelmed in ruin the sugar industry of the island. The insurrection army which at the outside never numbered in all its career, taking the most lavish pay-rolls, over 951,000, had rarely a tenth of this force in the field and yet succeeded in maintaining its struggle against the disciplined Spanish army of 90,000 men. It was led by educated Cubans who represented the wider aspirations of the island for independence, by partisan rangers and the natural leaders of the negro plantation laborers, who made the bulk of the fighting material. Of the first class was President Palma, of the second were General Gomez and General Macao, and of the third men like Gualberto Gomez, of Santiago, arrested at the opening of the present struggle who has been through all the period of President Palma's administration a malcontent. When President Palma was elected over an avowed revolutionary candidate, General Maso, he had behind him leaders of the revolution of all three classes. The older Cuban families, and among those a few men of wealth, during the long and dreary period from 1898 to 1901 conducted a hopeless struggle with a high courage and idealism, probably known only to those who were fortunate enough to come in contact with the Cuban Junta in the earlier insurrection. When the Government was turned over to the Cubans in 1902, it was in unchallenged control of these elements, known first as "Nationalists" and now as "Liberals". They held the administration of the leading offices of government. In the Constitutional Convention there was but one Conservative or Moderate, Eliseo Giberga. The municipal elections in 1901, held under the American army occupation, had placed them in control of local government often with deplorable results, for a experience of many revolutions has shown that men may have courage in the field in defence of liberty, and yet be corrupt in the council chamber when power has brought opportunity.

ON WHEAT.

It is stated the prices in wheat have advanced far enough for the present conditions and no particular change has occurred to affect the conditions surrounding the trade. Early in the season prices are said to have gone too low, and a reaction has set in on the reported smaller yields than had been estimated earlier in the season. This reaction has been strengthened with slower delivery this year than at the corresponding season last year. The crop receipts at the Lake ports, Minneapolis and Duluth are smaller than at this time last year, which is not due to a scarcity of wheat or lack of desire to forward wheat to the shipping points but solely by the tardiness in supplying transportation.

All over the United States and Canada there is a scarcity of cars in the wheat country. The early harvest and threshing has filled the elevators throughout the country and farmers are forced to erect temporary granaries to house their crops. Such a tie up has not existed before so early in the season, and is due to the want of any special energetic movement on the part of the railways to cope with the situation.

Export trade is dull and there is nothing extraordinary to report of the growing crops in foreign countries. Reports from India, Australia and Argentina continue favorable showing advanced seeding and increased acreage.

Consumption

And Its Prevention The Subject Of Saturday Evening's Lecture

A goodly number of the most prominent citizens of Edmonton gathered Saturday evening in the Oddfellows Hall, Norwood block to hear Dr. Moore of Ottawa, give his address on the Prevention of Consumption, and Dr. Clemondan, Medical Health Officer for Alberta on the reasons for compulsory regulations regarding the eradication of the disease.

The chair was taken by Hon. Senator Roy.

Dr. Moore gave a short history of the association for the prevention of consumption, which was formed in 1901 under the distinguished patronage of the Governor-General of Canada. It was founded by the census of 1901 that the mortality in Canada due to tuberculosis was alarmingly great. He who gave 12,000 individuals die in Canada per year through tuberculosis, which means 33 deaths every 24 hours. Nor do these figures represent the entire loss. There are over 600,000 invalids from whose ranks the country is recruited.

The question then is: Can the mortality be decreased? In England it has been reduced fifty per cent since 1855 through preventive measures. If such is possible in England, were the atmosphere so humid, greater things can be accomplished in Alberta, where the skies are clear, the atmosphere dry, and no congestion of population.

Lord Grey said at the last annual meeting of the Canadian Association that our fathers began a shelter crusade against leprosy years ago. It is a terrible condition, but we enter into our war against consumption, and that the day was sure to come that consumption would be as rare as leprosy.

Dr. Moore quoted medical authorities to show that the disease is as contagious as scarlet fever or small-pox, yet people are not so afraid of consumption as these late diseases because of its slow character and its insidiousness. It is generally thought to be an incurable disease, but a house die.

Dr. Moore explained in a popular way the cause of the disease which was due, he said, to a microscopic form of vegetation which he called the germ. All the facts are against the theory that it is hereditary. There may be, however, a predisposition that is caused in various ways, such as living in dark and ill-ventilated rooms, sickness and alcoholism, and quoted authorities to show that the number of cases of tuberculosis was directly proportional to the quantity of liquor consumed in a community. All these causes induce a condition of weakness favorable to the growth of the germ. The germ is greatly from three months to thirty years.

Dr. Moore stated that one cause of infection was the milk from dairy cows and that the sputa of an ordinary consumptive contains from two and a half to seven billion germs every twenty-four hours. He quoted Oscar, who says: "It is easy to believe that a germ sufficiently minute to infect, hogs and calves, might infect children and human beings."

As a matter of fact, said Dr. Moore, "it is true." The germ can be destroyed by warming the milk to 140 degrees.

The germ is harmless as long as kept moist, for then it cannot pervade the air and be inhaled.

A SELLING ARGUMENT. (Farmers' Advocate).

"Well broken, a perfect gentleman in every way," is the best selling phrase in a horseman's vocabulary in many towns in the West. This is true of nearly every kind of horse, but more especially of that type which we recognize as the family horse. He may possess no particular merit in speed or even in style but he must be quiet to ride or drive. A well-mannered horse is a treasure and buyers are willing to pay the price.

Newcomers to the country are always on the look out for well broken horses, ready to take hold of a load and work. A man who means business must get his work done; he can't take time to break horses, but the farmer or small rancher will find it profitable work in the off season of the year. There is, in this, a winter's work at good pay for many a farmer. It needs patience and common sense, that's all. If you possess the combination do not sell an unbroken horse.

WHAT IS DOMESTIC SCIENCE? Nor'western Farmer.

The following is a synopsis of an address on domestic science given by Miss Edith C. Charlton at a cooking school held by the Alberta Department of Agriculture at Medicine Hat from Aug. 21st to 24th.

Domestic Science may be defined as classified knowledge pertaining to the household and its welfare. It is a science in the fullest sense of the word, and it ranks as one of the leading means to health and prosperity of the present day. Fifty years ago very little was known of this department of knowledge as a science. Every housewife considered it her duty and aim in life to bake and brew and keep her house in order. She did it well, but was handicapped because of not knowing the why and wherefore. She knew little or nothing about sterilization, about temperature for cooking, or the principles of combination of food in order to obtain the best results for producing strong minds in strong bodies.

When we think of domestic science apart from what the term implies we find that to have a thorough knowledge of this science one must be well acquainted with chemistry, physics, physiology, biology and other sciences in order to grasp domestic science in its broadest sense.

THE FREIGHT HANDLERS' STRIKE

Port Arthur News—On Saturday afternoon there was inaugurated at Port Arthur a strike among the freight handlers of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the effects of which, on Sunday, were felt in Port Arthur by the Canadian Northern freight handlers walking out in sympathy.

The strike from its commencement, threatened to spread, until today at noon the situation had developed proportions of a stupendous nature. For a time it looked as though the whole C. P. R. operations at Port William and of the C. N. R. at Port Arthur would be completely tied up. The situation at Port William today was partially relieved by the settlement of the demands of the elevator men and machinists. The coal dock employees had not gone out at the hour of going to press, and are still undecided. The truckmen in the C. P. R. freight sheds are still out.

In Port Arthur 350 freight handlers are on strike awaiting the result of a conference with Superintendent Cameron, which is to be announced at six o'clock tonight.

Sixty C. N. R. Elevator men went on strike at noon today, and their demands are being considered by the company and an answer given this afternoon. The employees of the coal docks have so far made no move, and Superintendent Jorland states they have no grievance.

Total number of men on strike:
In Port Arthur.....400
In Port William.....450

A SCHOOL FOR MAGISTRATES

Robert Harbottle, M.B. of Dog Pond, Alta., writes the Toronto Star—

Some years ago I advocated the establishment of a school for magistrates, constables, county constables, policemen, etc., and available for lawyers and judges in connection with University College, Toronto; though, if the wisdom of Ontario prefer it, it might be in connection with Osgood Hall law School. Society has for ages conducted a warfare against criminals and the criminally disposed. No nation thinks of conducting war with untrained officers, and it is as essential in the interests of all concerned, society and the criminal class, that those having charge should be properly instructed in the best methods of dealing with the question. The present method is too bungling, costly, injurious, and works at "cross purposes," one undoing the good work of another. Wardens of prisons, penitentiaries, etc., of the United States and Canada meet at stated times in chosen places, and give their views of what is needed, but those views do not reach but a few, and not all of the parties their worth entitles them to reach, condemning the present system and suggesting valuable improvements. Criminals kick against injustice and the blockheadedness of the present system. As "Orderly" in the Central Prison, Toronto, for three and one-third months in 1902, I heard them discuss it in the hospital, where patients are allowed to talk, giving prison news from the United States as far south as Georgia, as well as Canada, stating the defects and suggesting remedies. As member of Prof. Croft's Analytical Chemistry class in about 1865, University College, Toronto, I listened to his cursory remarks not found consecutively in Scripture on the decision of a learned literary judge, which decision was contrary to his analysis, the dictate of science and the interests of society. Jailers kick at the procedure, decisions, and about the class of persons committed to their care, for many of whom as imbeciles, idiots, and insane, the jail is not a proper place.

"The course of instruction need not be long, a short term if deemed wise; but the warden of the Prison, the superintendent of the asylum, and the intelligent prisoner, perhaps the "orderly," as he has means of gathering information from various prisoners who have observed and been through the mill; a jailer, if there be no warden where the school is, or a jailer anyway, and perhaps the official public analyst should give their practical views on what it is best to do with and for the criminal class, to the parties handling them, who so badly need the information for society's good and there would be a great reformation in the present system, a unity of action, a speedy and vast reduction of the criminal class and their present cost. The intelligent North West Mounted Police are educated to obey orders, and their magistrates handle a vast territory well and cheaply. A return to the Ontario system would be retrograde. The vast numbers of Ontario's untrained officials handling the criminal class, the cost of supplying them with statute books yearly as well as in 10 years the consolidated Statutes, would, if lessened in number and properly trained, build and equip said school and gives far better results."

THE Oxford Hot Water Boiler is built to use absolutely all the heat generated in the fire-pot.

The inclining walls of the fire-pot expose great surface to the direct heat of the fire. The first section is greater in depth than the other sections, and the flues of this section are bell-shaped, against which the heat rays sharply impinge, so that a greater body of water gets the direct effect of the fire.

Oxford Hot Water Boiler

The entire boiler is steel and iron. The joints are made with steel push nipples, which are absolutely indestructible—no rubber washers.

We would like to send you a copy of our book about the Gurney Oxford Steam and Hot Water Heating Apparatus. Write for it, today.

TWO MORE STORES.

Messrs. Phersey & Batson have secured the contract for an addition of two stories, size 25x75 solid brick to the warehouse of the Great West Saddlery Co., Ltd. Work is to be rushed and completed by Dec. 10th, inside and out. The plans were prepared by Johnson & Lines, under the supervision of the local manager and approved by the president of the company during his recent visit with the manufacturers' excursion. This will give the company six floors, each 25x75, and will provide room to handle their rapidly expanding business. An elevator will be installed, and all the machinery will be run by electric power, and the manufacturing staff very materially increased.

The wholesale end of the business has grown very satisfactorily, and the energies of the management are being devoted entirely to the expansion of the wholesale trade. A travelling salesman is regularly employed, and with the improved facilities which the new addition will provide, much larger stocks can be carried, and better attention paid to this branch of the business. The Great West Saddlery Co., Ltd., is the largest saddlery house in Canada, and is a purely Western institution, and they have settled on the three strategic points of Winnipeg, Calgary, and Edmonton, and hope to keep pace with the development of the trade tributary to these three points.
